This was the era of product-centric marketing, where the main goal was to produce high-quality goods and hope customers would buy them.

However, Kotler introduced a paradigm shift: moving from a product-centric to a customer-centric approach. He emphasized understanding customer needs and wants, and tailoring offerings accordingly. Extensions and Modern Adaptations:

In the digital age, the 4 Ps have expanded into 7 Ps, adding People, Process, and Physical Evidence, especially relevant to service marketing. This evolution reflects Kotler's recognition of the changing marketing landscape.

- Segmentation: Dividing the market into distinct groups based on demographics, psychographics, geographic, or behavioral factors.
- Targeting: Selecting which segments to serve.
